Proposed policy: Reinstatement after the Third Disqualification Policy

At its meeting on September 12, 2007 the Educational Policies Committee passed a motion to adopt the following policy:

Current and Proposed Third Disqualification Policy

(Strike through indicates language that will be eliminated; BOLD indicates proposed policy language)

Third Disqualification

~~Students who are readmitted to the University after a Second Disqualification and fail to achieve a .05 GPA improvement while on probation will be disqualified and will never be able to reenroll at the University.~~

Students who are readmitted to the University after a Second Disqualification will receive a Third Disqualification if they (1) fail to achieve a 2.00 GPA in any semester while on probation after a Second Disqualification or (2) achieve Good Academic Standing after a Second Disqualification, but return to probation and subsequently lower their GPA below the thresholds defined by the number of units earned. Students who receive a Third Disqualification are not eligible to seek readmission to the University for a minimum of five years.

Academic Reinstatement to the University after a Third Disqualification

After five years, a student who has been disqualified for the third time may elect to reapply to the University. The student will have to provide evidence that demonstrates acquired skills or achievements that would support a successful return to the University. These students will be required to achieve a GPA of 2.00 or higher each term while on probation, and will be given no further opportunities for readmission.
