More Than 1,000 Invited to 17th Annual Honors Convocation at the University Club

More than 1,000 graduating seniors and master's degree recipients have been invited to participate in the 17th annual Cal State Northridge Honors Convocation for outstanding graduates on Tuesday, June 1.

CSUN President Blenda J. Wilson, who is resigning to become the first president and CEO of a New England-based nonprofit educational organization, will deliver the keynote address. The event begins at 6 p.m. at the University Club, corner of Nordhoff Street and Zelzah Avenue.

Seven students will receive recognition for their outstanding academic performance and community contributions. They are, in alphabetical order:

Erica Stevens Abbitt, 46, of Reseda will receive the Outstanding Graduate Student Award from the President's Associates.

Abbitt, who is getting a master's degree in theatre with an emphasis on feminist theatre, returned to school after being away for 20 years.

She received her first degree in political science because "it sounded serious." After graduating from McGill University in Montreal, Canada, she moved to London to study theatre, her first love.

Abbitt now has won a prestigious scholarship to pursue a doctorate in UCLA's theatre program. She wants to become a playwright and teach theatre.

"I am really honored to be in CSUN's theatre program. This very academic, rigorous and tough program provided me with the strong educational background I did not have," she said.

Angelique Burzynski, 41, of Pasadena is the 1999 Wolfson Scholar, an honor given each year to the university's top graduating senior.

Burzynski, a child development major with a minor in psychology, began her career as an opera singer. In 1991, she was diagnosed with Stargardt's Disease, a degenerative eye disorder leading to blindness, that made performing progressively more difficult.
Tapping into experiences she had as an opera singer teaching music to learning disabled and developmentally delayed children, Burzynski decided to go back to school and become a teacher.

She serves as a teacher's assistant at Five Acres, a residential placement center for abused and emotionally disturbed children, and works at Pasadena City College with learning disabled adults.

Burzynski plans to pursue a master's degree in special education at CSUN as well as a special education credential.

Jake Finch of Simi Valley, a 31-year-old journalism major, will receive an Outstanding Graduating Senior Award from the Alumni Association.

Finch credits her husband with encouraging her to return to school. She attended Pierce College from fall 1989 to 1992 before coming to CSUN in spring 1998.

She worked as chief editor of Pierce's student newspaper as well as CSUN's student paper, the Daily Sundial. She is a member of the Society of Professional Journalists and the honor society Kappa Tau Alpha, and has a 3.5 GPA.

Finch hopes to write for a Los Angeles newspaper or magazine. "I returned to school with one thought-to learn how to write," Finch said. "I fell into journalism after a wonderful professor told me, 'English majors learn how to read. Journalism majors learn to write.' It was then that I knew I was home."

Tracy Glen, 39, of Newhall is this year's recipient of the Mildred Z. Mininberg Memorial Fund Award given each year to an outstanding graduate student.

Glen, who is getting a master's degree in education administration, received her bachelor's degree in business administration from the University of LaVerne. She works at Coutin School in Canoga Park as director of computer services and as a special education teacher.

A single mother of two boys, Glen wants to become a community college administrator. "I believe you can make a greater impact as an administrator," she said. "You can only do so much in a classroom. I want to do more."

Rondi Heglin, 27, of Granada Hills is a winner of an Outstanding Graduating Senior Award from the President's Associates.

Heglin, who is receiving a bachelor's in journalism, has served as a volunteer for Habitat for Humanity, as well as the San Fernando Valley Rescue Mission. On campus, she is the Associated Students' representative to the Date Rape and Sexual Assault Committee and a contributing writer for the Daily Sundial.

Heglin will begin law school this fall at Gonzaga University in Spokane, Wash., on a full scholarship. She plans to specialize in public interest law. "Everybody at CSUN just seems to really care about their students." Heglin said. "It has made a huge difference in how much I've enjoyed school."

My Trinh "Sony" Smith, a 29-year-old family and environmental sciences major, is a winner of an Outstanding Graduating Senior Award from the President's Associates.

The Granada Hills resident has maintained a 3.52 GPA while staying involved in various extracurricular activities. Smith has been a member of the Blue Key Leadership Honor Society, served on the CSUN 40th Anniversary Celebration Subcommittee and participated in two community outreach programs for the Pacoima Urban Village serving at-risk Hispanic families.

Smith will serve as a Ronald Brown Fellow this summer with the Children's Defense Fund in Washington, D.C. "It's all about giving back and thanking people," Smith said. "It makes me feel good to know that I am helping other people."

Karina Zambrano, 22, of Simi Valley is a winner of this year's Outstanding Graduating Senior Award from the Alumni Association.

The electrical engineering major came to CSUN in fall 1994 and carried a 3.48 GPA. She wrote a software package for Lockheed Martin Skunk Works as a research project for the College of Engineering and Computer Science.

Zambrano has served as president of the engineering honor society and the college's student council. She also is a member of the Golden Key National Honor Society and president of Tau Beta Pi honor society.

"I think there are many stereotypes that work against us as women and minorities," Zambrano said. "You can feel isolated because there's not much to relate to. There are very few women in engineering. I believe that life is a challenge, and I will never settle for something lower than my initial goal."

Faculty Ratify Three-Year Contract Agreement with CSU

Package Includes Retroactive Pay, Merit Pay, 5.2% Average Salary Increase for 1998-99

A three-year contract agreement with the Cal State system has been ratified by California Faculty Association members. If approved by a CSU Board of Trustees' committee, the pact will resolve all remaining issues including merit pay, compensation and the status of lecturers.

The trustees' Committee on Collective Bargaining will hold a special meeting Tuesday, June 1, to vote on the final agreement. It covers the 1998-99 through 2000-01 fiscal years for nearly 20,000 CSU faculty, librarians, counselors, coaches and part-time faculty.

According to semi-official CFA election results, the contract proposal was ratified by a 80.4-18.6 percent tally systemwide, with about 40 special ballots remaining to be counted. At CSUN, those same results showed the measure passing overwhelmingly with 261 votes for (96 percent) and 11 votes against (4 percent).

The measure passed with strong margins at all campuses except for Pomona, where there was a 50-50 percent tie, and San Marco, where the margin was 51-49 percent in favor. Nine of the campuses had 90 percent or better votes in favor.

"I am very pleased the CFA membership overwhelmingly ratified the tentative agreement, and I am optimistic that the trustees will approve it on June 1," said Cal State Chancellor Charles B. Reed. "It includes many compromises made by both sides and many benefits for all faculty."

"Now it is time to look forward and work together collegially and focus all our energies on providing our students with the highest quality education, and providing the state with graduates ready to meet the challenges of the next century," the chancellor added.

The new agreement includes the following:

1998-99 Compensation

- A 5.2 percent average salary increase for 1998-1999.
- A 3 percent general salary increase effective Sept. 1, 1998.
- A 2.4 percent service step increase for about 6,000 CSU faculty, most of whom are junior faculty, effective Sept. 1, 1998.
- Merit pay retroactive to July 1, 1998.
Merit Pay

- A merit pay pool at nearly 40 percent of the total salary pool.
- A final appeals process by a panel of five faculty at each campus.
- Establishment of annual faculty academic reports and department-level faculty review committees for making merit pay decisions.
- Service Salary Increases become part of the merit pay process in 1999-2000 and will be awarded based on "satisfactory performance" rather than awarded automatically.
- Maximum merit pay award of 7.5 percent rather than 12.5 percent.

1999-2000 Compensation

- A 6 percent average salary increase, assuming the CSU receives the budget it requested.
- A 3.58 percent general salary increase.
- A 2.65 percent service-based salary increase.

Other Issues

- Two-year contracts will be awarded to more than 3,000 CSU lecturers with at least six years of continuing service beginning in 1999-2000 and 2000-2001.
- Maintaining the Faculty Early Retirement Program at five years.
- No additional $925,000 in salary increases for department chairs.
- One percent additional general salary increase for counselors.
- Counselors now eligible for sabbatical leaves.
- Doubling of paid maternity/paternity leave for all faculty.
Campus Says 'Bye-Bye Blenda' in Farewell Reception

Several hundred well-wishers from the campus and community turned out May 24 for a farewell reception honoring departing Cal State Northridge President Blenda J. Wilson—an event that raised more than $32,000 for the university's Presidential Scholars program.

The University Club event featured remarks by incoming CSUN Interim President Louanne Kennedy, Faculty President Al Kinderman, CSUN Foundation Vice Chair Al Lapides, incoming Associated Students President Robert Hanff, Presidential Scholar Arwen Vidal and, lastly, Wilson herself.

Comparing CSUN with other universities, the president said, "There is nothing about Cal State Northridge that we need apologize for. Our faculty are as good, our students are as good, and our tenacity outstrips any institution in this country. There's so much to be proud of here."

Wilson, who arrived in September 1992, will leave after June commencement ceremonies to become the first president and chief operating officer of the nonprofit Nellie Mae Foundation in New England. The Presidential Scholars program, begun under Wilson, pays full tuition for high-achieving CSUN students.

Names Proposed for Campus Areas

In an effort to make the Cal State Northridge campus easier to navigate, university officials have proposed names for various walkways, commons areas and road segments, and are inviting campus comment on the selections.

Campus Architect Deborah Wylie said the name selections, as detailed on the accompanying map, are part of the campus' master planning process. Feedback can be provided during June to Wylie by e-mail, at Deborah.Wylie@csun.edu, or by telephone at (818) 677-2561.

"I think these changes will give the campus more of a sense of place and identity," Wylie said, adding that most of the selected areas do not currently have formally designated names. The name selections are due to be confirmed by the Campus Planning Board in the fall.

The naming proposals include the five main east-west campus promenades, which are planned to be planted with flowering trees, the Oviatt Lawn and Sierra Quad open spaces in the center of the campus, and the newly dubbed University Loop Road that would circle the campus' core.
Jacaranda Walk was chosen because of some existing trees of that name on the segment, as was Magnolia Walk. Matador Walk reflects the campus mascot and the nearby Student Union. Sierra Walk stems from the adjoining Sierra Complex, and Orange Grove Walk reflects the nearby CSUN orange grove.

University Loop Road, envisioned as a future circulating route for vehicle traffic accessing the inner campus, would be the street name replacing the current campus segments of Lindley Avenue, Etiwanda Avenue and Plummer Street.

Planning Board Endorses Orange Grove Preservation

The Cal State Northridge Campus Planning Board on May 17 unanimously adopted a policy statement calling for the preservation in perpetuity of the university's historic orange grove, a six-acre area celebrating its 70th anniversary this year.

Geography professor Robert Gohstand, chair of the CSUN Historic Orange Grove Committee that works to preserve the area as a reminder of the San Fernando Valley's agricultural past, said the new statement reinforces a prior one adopted by the campus board in 1972.

Gohstand said the grove, located in the southeast corner of campus near Nordhoff Street and Zelzah Avenue, has about 600 trees. The grove committee has an adopt-a-tree program for $100-a-year and encourages donations and volunteers to maintain the grove.

For information or to support the grove, Gohstand can be reached by phone at (818) 677-3513 or x3532, by e-mail at robert.gohstand@csun.edu, or by fax at (818) 677-2723.
University Names Dull as New Athletic Director

Veteran Athletics Administrator/Attorney Due to Start July 1

Dick Dull, an athletics administrator with more than two decades of broad experience, has been named Cal State Northridge's athletic director starting July 1. The hiring was announced by CSUN President Blenda J. Wilson and incoming CSUN Interim President Louanne Kennedy.

Dull has been director of athletics at Moravian College, a private liberal arts school in Bethlehem, Pa. since May 1998. Previously, he ran the athletic programs at the University of Nebraska at Kearney from mid-1995 to mid-1998, and the University of Maryland College Park from August 1981 to October 1986.

"Dr. Kennedy and I are pleased that Mr. Dull has accepted the athletic director's position, for we believe he will benefit the university, our athletes and the surrounding community," Wilson said. Dull will take over from Sam Jankovich, who served as CSUN interim athletic director this year.

Dull, 53, who is also an attorney, said his two immediate priorities at CSUN will be to solidify support for the intercollegiate athletic program and to expand its fund-raising capability. "I think the No. 1 priority is to heal whatever issues may have developed over athletics with faculty, staff, students and the community," Dull said.

CSUN's athletic program consists of 20 teams, 10 men's and 10 women's, mostly in the Big Sky Conference. The program includes about 500 student-athletes and has an annual budget of about $7 million. The women's basketball and indoor and outdoor track and field teams were spring 1999 conference champions.

Dull was hired after a five-month, nationwide search by the university. CSUN received nearly 50 applications for the athletic director's job. A nine-member search committee headed by Faculty Athletic Representative Tom Shannon narrowed the list to four finalists, including Dull, who participated in on-campus interviews.

Wilson said she was impressed with the breadth of Dull's experience, including that he had headed athletic programs at all three levels in the National Collegiate Athletic Association: Division I at Maryland, Division II at the University of Nebraska, and Division III at Moravian College.

Kennedy added that Dull had been tested by past controversy and emerged from it a stronger leader. After the June 1986 cocaine-overdose death of basketball All-American Len Bias drew national scrutiny to the University of Maryland, Dull left college athletics and spent the next nine years until mid-1995 as marketing director for a firm that arranged sports-oriented tour packages.

At Moravian College, Dull oversaw 16 sports, eight men's and eight women's, with an athletic budget of about $1.5 million and about 20 full-time staff. Five of the 16 teams, four women's and one men's, were conference champions... this year. Dull said track and field sports have been the school's main athletic draws.

At the University of Nebraska at Kearney, Dull's program led its conference in the number of honor roll student-athletes in 1996-97 and negotiated a corporate sponsorship program with Nike. At Maryland, his program increased athletics gross revenues from $3.7 million to $9 million over five years, and increased annual giving to athletics from $900,000 annually to $2.8 million.

Dull earned his law degree and bachelor's in political science from the University of Maryland. Once at CSUN, he will report to Interim University President Louanne Kennedy. Initially he plans to live in an on-campus apartment and will draw a starting salary of $110,004.

Staff Employee of the Year

Fidel Ramirez of CSUN's Office of Student Outreach and Recruitment Services was chosen as the university's staff Employee of the Year during the annual staff recognition awards ceremony May 19 in the Satellite Student Union.

Ramirez is the office's coordinator of pre-college programs. With his passion and commitment to Cal State Northridge, Ramirez has affected the lives of thousands of elementary, middle and high school students and their parents, and has inspired dozens of Cal State Northridge students to enter the field of education.
As one example of his efforts, Ramirez helps coordinate events such as this year's fifth annual "College: Making It Happen" conference, which hosted more than 1,000 students and family members. The event provided activities for students from pre-kindergarten through high school and their parents.

Other nominees this year were Ann Morey, Benjamin Elisondo, George Alwerth, Suzan Brownlee, Mickey Martinez, Lillian Marcus, George Mansoor, Debra Finley, Sabrina Rife, Karin Eby, Jim Castro, William Krohmer and Barbara Wetherby.

Home Address Info

All university employees (including student employees) must maintain current home address information with the university. If individuals have changes of address to report, it is essential that they complete an Employee Action Request form. This form is available in Payroll Services, Administration Park 705, and in Human Resource Services, Administration Park 702, or employees may phone Human Resource Services at x3812 and request that a form be mailed to their campus address. Employees should also notify their department secretary of any change in their address. fmi-Payroll Services, x2315, or Rhonda Gershon, x3812.

NCOD Information

CSUN's National Center on Deafness provides the following Q. and A. for university faculty and staff members to better serve the university's deaf and hard-of-hearing students.

Q: How do faculty members know the interpreter is interpreting everything they are saying?

A: Interpreters are bound by the Code of Ethics of the Registry of Interpreters for the Deaf (the national professional organization of interpreters). One of the tenets states that the interpreter "shall render the message faithfully, always conveying the content and spirit of the speaker." Therefore, anything that transpires will be interpreted. Sometimes the deaf or hard-of-hearing students choose not to watch the interpreter, just as hearing students have the option of not paying attention.

It is up to the faculty member to monitor the students in the class, both deaf and hearing. The interpreter is there to interpret whenever the faculty member needs to make a comment to an individual student about behavior in the classroom including attendance, participation, tardiness, talking/signing, chatting, etc. Rule of thumb: treat the deaf or hard-of-hearing students as you would the hearing students.

Professors should feel free to call the NCOD at x2054 for information on working with deaf and hard-of-hearing students, or the service providers who accompany them.

Entertainment Industry Grants

CSUN's Entertainment Industry Institute announces the recipients of its 1999-2000 Interdisciplinary Project Support Grants. The recipients are:
